FIGHT TO REMOVE BROOKS STATUE

Contributors Seek Right to Replace Work of St. Gaudens at Trinity Church

Boston is threatened with the loss of one of its most famous and talked-of art treasures—St. Gaudens' statue of Bishop Phillips Brooks, which for nearly ten years has graced Copley square, occupying a prominent place close to Trinity Church.

A bill filed today petitions the Supreme Court to permit the removal of this famed work of art to the Cambridge Theological School and the substitution of another statue of the famous clergyman made by the late Bela Pratt.

Probably no statue in the world has caused as much discussion and been the centre of as idle a wrangle as the St. Gaudens bronze figure. Boston was divided by the controversy at the time the statue was unveiled. Certain critics and others declared that it did not do justice to the beloved bishop. Others defined the statue to be a peerless work of art.

CONTRIBUTORS SIGN PETITION.

The petition filed today was signed by President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University, Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon, Daniel H. Clement and Rev. Leighton Parks, a majority of the surviving committee of original contributors to the fund raised for the erection of the St. Gaudens statue.

Besides deciding whether the St. Gaudens statue is to be removed from Copley square, the court will rule whether or not $25,000 is to be taken from a $65,000 trust fund, representing the unexpended balance of the amount originally collected for the St. Gaudens statue, to complete the Pratt figure.

The fund for the St. Gaudens' statue was raised in 1898. When in 1909 the statue had been placed in position the committee which had collected the fund found itself with $25,000 still on hand. The Supreme Court decreed that this should be turned over to

GUNS ON BERLIN ROOFS WERE MOVIE CAMERAS

Copenhagen, Jan. 9.—During the fighting in Berlin on Tuesday, Spartacans started to storm the Adlon Hotel, declaring that machine guns had been mounted on the roof. Guards intervened and promised to investigate. The machine guns were found to be moving picture cameras operated by a couple of American "movie operators," who had been sent here by the American military authorities to take pictures for official use.

MOTHER WINS AUTO RACE FOR BOY

Groton, Jan. 9.—Arthur G. Christiansen, a wealthy mining engineer of Dover, N. J., called his seven-year-old son Minot, out of the school here today and drove him away in a touring car, being pursued by the boy's mother as soon as she learned of it. The chase ended Ayer, when the mother overtook the car, and appealed to soldiers on leave for her ex-husband, her divorced husband from taking the child to New Jersey.

Ayer and Groton police and State Police Officer Stephen Bresnahan were called in, and Christiansen was allowed to go after agreeing to restore his son to the mother.

The mining engineer told the police that he was divorced from his wife some time ago, and she was given the custody of their son except for the two first weeks in January and July. When he did not get his son the first of the year he determined to take possession of him by strategy, he said. He will be given an opportunity to prove his claim to temporary custody of the boy.

Mrs. Christiansen since her divorce has made her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eddy of Groton.

THREAT TO DESTROY FORTS

By FLLOYD MacGRIFF, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Jan. 9. — The allies have served notice on Turkey that unless the Turkish commander and the garrison at Medina surrender immediately the forts on the Dardanelles will be destroyed, it was learned today.

A British force has been sent into the Caucasus to force the two Turkish army corps there to depart and this end the fighting between the Georgians, Armenians and others.

The evacuation of 50,000 Turkish troops in that region is being carried out slowly, with the soldiers burning and pillaging as they go. The British force will remain in the Caucasus after the last of the Turks are forced out to keep open communication with the trans-Caspian district. The British are in complete control of the Caspian Sea, having defeated the three Bolshevik war craft that were in those waters.

The allies have occupied Ismidja in Asiatic Turkey in the eastern part of the Balkans, bordering the Black Sea, formerly owned by Rumania, but occupied by a Bulgarian and German army in the war.

The allies will hold Dobrudja pending the peace settlement and in the meantime the Bulgarian administration has been withdrawn.

12,500 MARINE WORKERS GO ON STRIKE IN N.Y.

New York, Jan. 9.—The port of New York is practically paralyzed today as the result of a strike of approximately 12,500 marine workers. The tug and its entrance face a situation which is believed to be the most precarious in its history.

Nearly a dozen ports in New Jersey where New York's coal supply is delivered were completely tied up and no coal started for the city this morning.

Pier houses and the Hudson tubes in New Jersey have been placed under strong police guard to prevent violence.

The strikers declare they will not return to work unless the boat owners agree to settle all differences, including hours of labor and wages, by arbitration.

Ports from Boston to Sandy Abbey, N. J., are affected to a certain extent by the walkout here, in so far as workers from this harbor are ordered not to handle matter for those ports.

There were rumors that similar messages had been sent to sailing ships to dock at other Atlantic ports, instead of coming here. If the rumor is true, union leaders declare that strikes will follow in those cities as well.

U.S. TROOPS IN RUSSIA FRIENDLY

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The fifteen thousand American troops in Russia—10,000 at Vladivostok and 5,000 at Archangel, and on the Murman coast—are there as friends, not enemies, of the Russian people. They were sent there for important purposes in connection with the war and in every case their recognition by the inhabitants of the district they occupied has been friendly.

Senator Hitchcock, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, made this statement to the Senate this afternoon in response to insistent demands from Senator Johnson of California and others that the Senate be given a definite statement of the administration's Russian policy.

Senator Hitchcock traced in detail the reasons for landing allied and American troops at Vladivostok, Archangel and Murmansk, and revealed that the efforts of the troops at Archangel had failed.

FAILURE AT ARCHANGEL.

"The allies and ourselves early in August occupied Archangel," he said, "in an attempt to save millions of dollars' worth of war supplies which the United States and the allies had landed there when Russia was fighting the Germans. The Germans were

Ebert Government Troops Battle With Radicals in Berlin

By International News Service.

Berlin, Jan. 9.—(Via Copenhagen, Jan. 9.)—German troops supporting the Ebert government entered Berlin today and drove back the Spartacans. The troops came from Potsdam.

There was a struggle at the offices of the Wolff Bureau, where four loyal soldiers were killed.

The Spartacus troops were driven from Tiergarten and adjacent streets.

Heavy forces of government reinforcements are en route to Her Lin.

At this dispatch was filed the loyal forces were fighting to recapture the buildings the Spartacans had occupied.

The Spartacans were ejected from the state printing offices after a sharp fight. The government is again in control of the railways. The firing is constant.

Several shots were fired at the Danish Red Cross building. The building occupied by the Red Cross and newspaper organ of the radicals, was occupied by local troops after a hard struggle. The Spartacans defending the place barricaded themselves in behind rolls of printing paper.

The governments position was strengthened during the night, and at 9 o'clock this evening traffic was recommenced on the city railways. Troops—both regular and volunteers—are coming up to support the government. All are well equipped.

The Vorwaerts, the official organ of the socialists, which had been seized by the Reds, made its reappearance today as a loyal newspaper. The paper was printed secretly. The extremists had threatened to call a general strike if the loyalists succeeded in regaining the Vorwaerts plant.

The newspaper Allegemeine Zeitung, which had been suppressed by the Reds, reappeared today also. It is reported that the government is attempting further negotiations with the Spartacans.

Report Spartacans Control the Railways Entering the Capital

Copenhagen, Jan. 9.—Although late advices from Berlin stated that Government troops had arrived in the city and were gaining the upper hand, a dispatch filed in the German capital at noon yesterday and reaching here today, said that, at that time, the Spartacans were almost in control of the railway stations and dominated much of the city except the quarters about Wilhelmstrasse.

Thus the radicals were able to control admittance to the city by railway, which was an important development, as it is understood that masses of troops drawn from the various garrisons in Germany were massed in the suburbs of the capital.

On Tuesday the Spartacans attempted to occupy the Imperial bank but were repulsed. Government troops, it was reported from Munich. New and dangerous symptoms were reported in the German situation.

The Bolshevik movement has spread into the Westphalian industrial district where Mulheim and Oberhausen were seized by the radicals.

New troubles in Berlin are expected. Opposition against the Berlin Government is developing in South Germany and the Bavarian Socialist Minister Auer made a sharp attack against the Ebert regime in a speech at Munich.

U. S. DECLARES WAR ON ALIEN RADICALS

Washington, Jan. 9.—The arrest and deportation following deportation of all aliens found advocating anarchy or the destruction of property is planned by the Department of Labor, Secretary Wilson announced today.

Instructions to this effect will be sent to all immigration officials before the end of the week, it was stated.

Secretary Wilson's statement was taken to indicate the first concrete move of the government to combat the reported growth of the radical movement in this country.

"We will take no steps against aliens simply for joining the I. W. W," Secretary Wilson asserted, "but we plan to arrest and deport any alien, whether of not a member of such aliens, who is found advocating or teaching the unlawful destruction of property, advocating or teaching anarchy, the overthrow by force or violence of the United States government, or who are in any way subject to deportation under the immigration laws of the country."

Bolshevists Aim to Establish a World Wide Dictatorship

London Daily Express and Universal Service.

Berlin, Jan. 9.—From the Central Committee, directed by Liebknecht and Rosa Lusembourg, a summary of the views of the extreme radical Socialist, or Bolshevist, party is obtained. It follows:

The Spartacides are determined to carry on a class struggle of the working classes against the Bourgeoisie, until it has established a government by and for the working classes, excluding all others from participation.

The Spartacus band represents the great mass of the proletariat, not only of Germany, but of the entire world. The present revolution does not affect Germany alone, but is world wide. It aims to end in a universal establishment of a dictatorship by the proletariat, with all resistance crushed.

OBJECT OF SPARTACUS BUND.

The immediate object of the Spartacus bund in Germany was outlined at the recent Spartacus Congress as follows:

Disarm all police and soldiers not belonging to the proletariat.
Control all Municipal plants.
Disarm the ruling classes; arm the workmen in the Bolshevist militia.
Free the individual from army discipline.
End the military caste.
Establish a revolutionary tribunal.
Try the chief men guilty of causing the prolongation of the war, including the Hohenzollerns, Hindenburg, Ludendorff and Tirpitz.

The political purpose is to end the states and substituting a single German Socialist republic, absolute socialization of the state with a six-hour day and insurance against unemployment.

TO CANCEL STATE DEBTS.

The first work lying before the proletariat government, which they hope to form, will be the confiscation of the dynastic fortunes and incomes, CANCELLATION OF STATE AND PUBLIC DEBTS, including war loans, but excepting those people's small loans; confiscation of the real estate, all banks, mines, industrial and commercial companies, and of all fortunes above a certain low level.

Nationalization of the traffic system by the Soviets is another plank in the Reds' platform.

Under their plan all factory workers are to control the production of the places where they work.

A central strike committee, also, is to be established, if they have their way.

COURT ACTION ON BROOKS STATUE

Trinity Church as a trust fund for the care and maintenance of the monument and for charitable purposes connected with the church.

When the citizens who were dissatisfied with the St. Gaudens statue hit upon the idea of having one modeled by the late Bela Pratt they raised a supplementary fund to purchase a monument, the models of which Pratt showed them in 1915. The citizens' committee now finds that $17,000 is needed to complete the Pratt statue and asks the right to expend this sum. It was when the St. Gaudens statue was placed on its grounds Trinity Church learned that the statue should always remain in the open, excluding the church. It cannot be removed, therefore, without the sanction of the Supreme Court. The agreement, constituting a public charitable trust, Attorney General Atwill has been made a party in the presentation.

Edward K. Warren, a member of the citizens' committee which wants to substitute the Pratt monument for that by St. Gaudens, explained today that the Pratt statue is now in Providence in the foundry where it was cast, ready to be brought to Boston. Nothing further can be done in the matter until the court has made its decision," he said. "If the court modifies the agreement then the Pratt statue will be put up at once.

"It should be understood that there is no question of artistic merit in the matter. Simply many of the citizens considered that the St. Gaudens statue did not do justice to Bishop Brooks. Some years after it had been in position we saw a chance to get what we considered a better monument by Bela Pratt. Now there is was only a question of putting this later work of art in the best possible position, which we finally agreed to be in the place now occupied by the St. Gaudens work."

GERMANS WERE TO INVADE CANADA

Washington, Jan. 9.—The plans of the German imperial government for the invasion of Canada by Germans in this country who had served in the German army were laid before the Senate propaganda investigating committee this afternoon, when A. Bruce Bielaski, chief of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice, resumed the stand.

"The man reported upon to carry through the invasion were members of the 'Kriegsbund,'" Bielaski said. "Only men who had received training in the German war machine were eligible for membership. Some of these organizations were actually drilling and supplied with rifles. The society was well organized and had branches scattered throughout the United States."

"My son is very hard on shoes, so keeping him properly shod has been quite an expense to me," writes Mr. J. Allison Allen, of Amity, Arkansas.

"But since I started to buy Neolin-soled shoes for him I have found that it costs only about a third as much to keep him in shoes.

"This is because Neolin Soles are so tough and durable that they wear a very long time. Shoe bills are kept down because you don't need so many pairs.

"You can get Neolin-soled shoes at almost any good shoe store. They come in all styles and for all members of the family. Neolin Soles are also available everywhere for re-soling. They are produced by a scientific process to be what soles ought to be: comfortable, waterproof and long-wearing. WORK FOR ALL IN WORLD'S TRADE ADJUSTMENT

By COLONEL WINSTON SPENCER CHURCHILL,
Former Minister of Munitions of Great Britain.
(Written especially for Universal Service).

London, Jan. 9.—The rehabilitation of the world trade is a gigantic problem. Everybody must try his very best to get around the difficult and dangerous corner that the transition from war to peace industry presents. I do not suppose this will be accomplished as quickly as everybody would like it.

There is a great pent-up demand resulting from the cessation of hostilities and afford every opportunity for profitable employment of capital and full occupation of labor. But undoubtedly following the war of 1870, small though that war was in comparison with what this has been, the immense demand for commodities of all kinds necessitates a keen demand for labor in order to repair war's wastage and ruin.

BIG GOODS DEMAND.

We have only to look over the map of Europe and contemplate the great countries whose means of production have been so largely impaired and whose conditions will for some time be very precarious.

A great demand will arise for commodities. Granted loyalty, greater earnest effort, splendid absence of useless factions or of selfish class interests in all directions by labor or capital, and we can see what a splendid opportunity is offered to vigorous economy organizations.

Government intervention in industry undoubtedly will be necessary for some time.

It is also necessary for our international instruments to be kept in being for some time so as to secure the victualling of the world and the restoration of economic conditions in the countries that are shattered by the war. Yet we must liberate the forces of individual enterprise.

CITIZENS FIRST.

I do not suppose it would be policy for any government to retain any of the world trade in regard to any country that can be safely and reasonably left to the individual citizens.

The great thing is to get to work on new production as quickly as possible. Interest and industry are speeding to resume normal activities. The only question is that of a comparatively short delay and of avoiding a violent shock at the change. The one great problem is the problem of crossing that dangerous zone.

FIFTH LIBERTY LOAN' ♦ CLOSES BEFORE MAY 1

JOBLESS MEN IN PROTEST MEETING

Springfield, Jan. 9.—Discharged soldiers and sailors who are without funds and have been denied their old jobs back held a mass meeting today and demanded that something be done for them.

The meeting, believed to be the first of its kind in the United States, was in the K. of C. hall in Court square and was attended by fifty men in uniform.

A committee was appointed at the meeting, consisting of four ex-soldiers and three ex-sailors. This committee conferred with the Central Labor Union officials, who promised to make a survey of the local situation and trying to get work for the men.

SITUATION IS ACUTE.

The situation is acute, and the men are bitter. "We left our old jobs when we entered the army," said Elias Wood, "and they are now filled by others. We are not radicals and have no sympathy with the I. W. W. propaganda which is in progress in Springfield. It is to prevent dissatisfaction which may result in gain for such movements that we are meeting. We do think the country owes us the chance to earn a living."

FACE WINTER OF IDLENESS.

The soldiers and sailors had a conference with George H. Wrenn, former president of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, who promised all the assistance possible.

Public sentiment in Springfield is strongly with the soldiers and sailors who are coming home to idleness and want. From reports received by union officials, it is estimated that 2,000 men and many of them are of the class called "homeless," young men who would pay their own transportation from the start. The more fortunate of the discharged men, who have families glad to welcome them back, are trying in all possible ways to assist their comrades.

BIG DECREASE IN GRIP CASES AND DEATHS

A drop of sixteen in the number of deaths, and of five in the number of new cases, reported for Boston today over the figures for twenty-four ending at 9 a. m. today are twenty-five from influenza and four from pneumonia, as against forty-five deaths reported for the previous twenty-four hours and 236 new cases of influenza and twenty-nine of pneumonia, as against 270 new cases of both yesterday. Health Commissioner William C. Woodward expressed himself as much encouraged over the situation.

A large decrease in the number of new cases of influenza was also shown in the reports filed with the State Department of Health yesterday, the total number of new cases being 1,500, as compared with 2,057 for the day previous. The number of deaths reported, 45, is the same, however, as the preceding day.

TO SIGN INITIAL PEACE TREATY BEFORE MAR. 1

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 9.—The initial peace treaty probably will be signed before the end of February, the Pall Mall Gazette stated today. Germany had again approached the allies with a view to having the negotiations concluded as soon as possible. The feeling in the allied countries appears to favor the utmost expedition possible, the Pall Mall Gazette added.

Paris, Jan. 9.—Only President Wilson is to represent the United States at the conference of the British, French and Italian premiers at the Foreign Office, it was stated today. The other members of the American mission—Secretary Lansing, Colonel House, Henry White and General Bliss—would not be present, it was stated.

Doubt was expressed today whether a program for the preliminary conferences could be arranged without further delay, but in many quarters belief was prevalent that this would be possible if all elements pulled together.

As a matter of fact, whereas a fortnight ago sentiment was apparently against the idea of allies ready to feel the necessity of doing something. The general impression today is that the questions will be taken up in this order:

1—League of Nations.

2—Agreement on collateral questions.

3—Indemnities and the method of payment.

4—Territorial boundaries.

Suggestions are expected from the Japanese delegates, who are now on the Atlantic on their way to Paris.

It is certain that one of the collateral questions that will be settled first deals with the widespread sentiments of Bolshevism throughout the Central Powers.

after these supplies. We were just too late. German efficiency and Bolshevist perfidy got the last supplies away just before our troops landed. Still we continued to hold the port to make sure that it should not be used as a German base."

The demands for a statement of Russian policy came from two sources, Hitchcock said. In one side the administration is criticized for failure to yield to "the desires of Great Britain and France and send larger forces into Russia for the purpose of pacification and the restoration of civilized conditions."

STATES RUSSIAN SITUATION.

On the other hand, he added criticism is directed at an effort to secure the removal of the troops now in Russia. The general situation in Russia, Senator Hitchcock described in these words: "Gloomy and chaotic, of course, there is a Russia still, but in a political sense there is none for there is no responsible Russian government with which our government or any other government can deal.

"The Lenine-Trotzky government holds ideody sway in Petrograd, Moscow and a few of the great cities, but every nation in the world has been compelled to withdraw its embassies and legations from Petrograd. The assassination of ambassadors, attaches and members of the diplomatic corps and the arrest and imprisonment of others have compelled even the neutral nation to withdraw their representatives from Petrograd. The Russian embassy to the United States is still in Washington, but with somewhat doubtful status."

SPECULATOR CAUSES HIGH PRICE OF FOOD, SAYS EXPERT

'BUY ONLY WHAT IS CHEAP'

Let Rich Pay Fancy Prices for Scarce Articles, Declares Commission Man

By HAZEL CANNING.

"Eliminate the speculator—sell them the goods will sell for their right value. It would be more than shameful for us to sink to the old, high-hazard ways, now the war is won. Let us use the Government organization which won us the war, to win us prosperity in peace."

So spoke J. J. Castellini, ex-president of the National League of Commission Merchants, in discussing high prices of vegetables and fruits, in a little talk between sessions of the Commission Merchants at the Copley-Plaza.

"Present prices of fruits and vegetables will last till the next harvests. But now wail before complaining," he said.

"Vegetables are high—some of them.

"Fruits are almost invariably high, but still, if the public is educated they can have all the vegetables they need, even now, at reasonable prices.

"The whole matter rests, at present, in buying what is cheap and good, though cheap, in selling your richer neighbor pay the fancy prices for celery, cranberries and oranges. You, meantime, wait for the next crop and lowered prices. Now for those vegetables which the public should be educated at present to buy and use abundantly—for they are cheap.

REASON FOR CONDITIONS.

"These are potatoes, turnips, carrots, cabbage—almost any of the staples, in fact. Now, coming back to the excessive cost of the more perishable vegetables and of nearly all the fruits, the reason for high prices is decreased production of last harvest year and increased demand of this consumption year, when Europe opened to us where famine-germs were before, asks us for $100,000,000 worth of food.

"Decreased production of last year is easy to explain—the farm boys transplanted from the harvest field to France, or the munition plant, was the reason, so we raised less food. We couldn't help it. But educate the public that this year of plenty, with its unquestionably top-going prices, is temporary. For labor is coming back from France and the munitions factories have shut down. Therefore, the coming year is plentiful next year. Europe will be feeding herself, presently, and will come back to us with lowered prices.

"But now let's practice the most conservative word of warning. Here's our country in its eighteen months' wise and highly educated military nation, with a steel front facing Germany, our food and money, by practical government overseeing and economizing, was enough to feed and bequip the government co-operated with such as us, here at this convention.

"We people are talking of removing governmental control. It would be most harmful, in my opinion. Let the country go on furnishing information as to where the market is overstocked, where the demand is greater than shipments. Let us build the biggest merchant marine in the world. We can fill it with the products of our fields. This matter will be established, the growers helped, prices presently reasonable for producer to buy, and prosperity return to stay.

"The American people, when in eighteen months, became a military nation, with every man in the country at a war job, can easily readjust their trading, planting, and harvesting. Just explain and they will learn. For they are the most intelligent people in the world."

TELLS OF MUCH COMPETITION IN FISH

Irving N. Atwood, treasurer of the Boston Fish Pier Company, testified that Boston fish firms have to compete with big corporations in other cities. He testified before Judge Bingham, Johnson and Aldrich in the Federal Building at the civil proceedings of the forty fish dealers charged with violations of the antitrust laws. He cited a million dollar corporation in Montreal, a two million and a half corporation in the Middle States and a million dollar concern in Halifax as among those with whom Boston dealers compete.

The largest part of Boston's schooner fleet, he said, is owned by the Gorton-Pew Company of Gloucester. His own concern, he testified, owns but on vessel, but plans to construct others when financial conditions change.

He said his company, whose cash resources at its foundation amounted to $250,000, could do business at the Fish Pier without the Bay State Fishing Company. Asked if both the Pier company and the Bay State could do business at the pier independently he said they are doing so at the present time.

is growing among the authorities investigating the case which thus far has baffled their efforts of solution.

Intimate friends of the murdered woman state that this unwelcome visitor made himself objectionable to her and that she was forced to repel his attentions. Fear of him, they assert, caused her to change her place of residence.

Following the announcement of Mrs. Brown's murder, her daughter, Mrs. William H. Brooks of this city, was heard to exclaim, "My God, I feared this would happen!"

The author's attentions became so annoying, say friends of the victim, that it was necessary for her to appeal to the man's mother, asking that she use her influence in preventing her son from annoying her.

Two new witnesses who say that they saw the suspicious character who accosted Miss Grace Fold near the spot where Mrs. Brown was stabbed to death, have come forward with a description of the missing man in response to the appeal for public cooperation by County Attorney Henry L. Wither.

Tax Collector Oliver Lovejoy, No 101 Limerock street, and Clerk of the Supreme Court, Tyler M. Counihl, a neighbor of the murdered woman, living at No. 25 Broadway, are the latest witnesses to give important to the State's case by confirming the description of the murder suspect furnished by Miss Grace Ford.

BLOCKED WAY.

Collosear Lovejoy says he was accosted on the spot described by Miss Ford. The hour was 7.30. "A tall man in a dark cap and overcoat stepped suddenly in front of me from behind a tree trunk as I was on my way to Judge Counihl's. He turned the sidewalk completely.

"I took my hands out of my pockets for rapid fashioning to meet an emergency. The stranger thrust his head forward menacingly, but, upon seeing that I was evidently not the person for whom he was waiting, stepped aside and walked briskly past me, muttering under his breath as he proceeded at a rapid pace up Limerock street.

"He wore a long cloth overcoat and a visor cap and carried both hands outside his pockets in a peculiar rapid fashion. I did not get a good look at his face so cannot describe his features.

"I gave the matter no further thought until I learned of Mrs. Brown's death the following morning. It is possible that the man who apparently intended to annoy some one when he accosted me, or the same man who made the guttural sounds described by Miss Grace Ford when he blocked her path at the spot two hours later that evening."

According to Miss Ford's description of the man who jumped in front of her from behind a tree at 9.30 on the night of the murder, her acquaintance made a similar gutteral sound and failed in every respect with the story related by Collector Lovejoy.

Judge Could Tell Chemical From Real Blondes

By International News Service.

New York, Jan. 9.—Infallible ability to distinguish between their high blonds by nature and their high blonds by artificial means was claimed a few days ago by Magistrate Grisba, but His Honor Saturday wants corroborative evidence.

Magistrate Grisba found Mrs. Annie Burns guilty of disorderly conduct in arresting her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jeannette Klein, of being a peroxide blonde. He declared he could tell the difference with one eyes closed, or words to that effect.

When Mrs. Burns came up for sentence yesterday she confirmed that Mrs. Klein's hair is blonde, and the magistrate consented to calling in an expert before passing sentence.

"And if other experts on the subject wish to volunteer their services I shall be thankful," the judge added.

ADMITS DEATH CHALLENGE TO HUB FLIER

Discharged Aviator Arrested on Charge of Sending Objectionable Matter Through Mail

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 9.—William A. Asche, twenty-five, a former United States aviation star, graduated from the instructors' squad, Camp Taylor, South Lebanon, O., was arrested here on a Federal warrant charging him with sending objectionable matter through the mails. He will be given a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Adler here, on January 20.

Asche told Commissioner Adler that his arrest had resulted from a challenge to fight a duel to the death that he had sent to Lieutenant George W. Morris, U. S. A., of Boston, who, he says, missed his unfavorable chance to escape from the army and personally prevented him from going to France.

"The challenge," he said, was accompanied by advice, which was designed to make the officer angry enough to want to fight.

Asche said that he had applied to become an official member of the aviation corps and would have to be organized by Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary of the United States Navy.

Asche, since his discharge from the army last October, has been an expert chemist with the Peters Cartridge Company at South Lebanon. Asche gave bonds.

He says that while he was instructing aviators for service in France at a United States aviation field in Louisiana he was cited for alleged failure to observe proper respect for a superior officer by Second Lieutenant Morris.

Angered by what he thought was persecution, he is alleged to have repeatedly challenged Lieut. Morris to a duel to the death with any sort of weapons to be chosen by Morris.

Lieutenant George W. Morris is with the 26th Infantry at Camp Beauregard, Pineville, Louisiana, where he is in the service of aerial bombing. He has seven-five years of age and makes his home with his mother, Mrs Ann Morris of No. 221 Bennington street, East Boston.

In August, 1917, he entered Plattsburg and received his commission. He was transferred to the Aviation Section, Signal Corps, and went through one of the aerial schools, afterwards being stationed at Kelly Field at San Antonio, Tex., where he received his flying instructions. After finishing at Kelly Field, he was ordered to Louisiana, where he is an instructor in aerial bombing.

The Welcome Sales Agent

THE AMERICAN Want Ad is the best agent to sell your goods, because it is the welcome agent.

The quality most desired in a salesman is a pleasing address.

That is not only one of his greatest needs, but it is his first need.

It is that quality about him that opens the door.

If he is disagreeable, or in any way offensive, and customers do not like to see him, it is a severe handicap for him, and another agent with more charm of manner, although less real ability, will excel him.

There core all good salesmen study the art of approach.

Half of the battle is won when you know how to go at a man.

American Want Ads are salesmen people you are glad to meet.

The fact that a man reads your Ad at all, the fact that he looks it up in the newspaper, proves that he is interested in what you have to offer.

He is already half sold.

The new-paper does that much for you. It goes to a prepared audience.

Your Want Ad is a bait you do not have to watch. It is set in the great stream of humanity and the only fish that nibble at it are those that like it.

The most difficult thing in salesmanship is to persuade people that are not at all interested in what you have to sell that they should buy.

Every two-legged salesman wastes a good deal of time on trying to interest people who are indifferent.

And every one of them would give his boots to discover some way in which he could get a list of people who already have the desire to buy his special line of goods.

The Want Ad solves this problem.

Out of the multitude of newspaper readers, out of the thousands who scan these columns, there is perhaps but a small per cent. who are already interested in your matter.

Your Want Ad not only goes to that per cent., but it is eagerly sought for by them. This is the little sales agent that is greeted with a smile and invited in. The door is not slammed in his face.

Your Want Ad is Want-Ed.

BOLSHEVISM HINDERS PEACE SETTLEMENT, SAYS DR. DILLON

President Wilson's Plans for World Freedom Hampered by Russian Situation

Dr. E. J. Dillon, one of the world's greatest journalists, will report the peace proceedings, upon which the eyes of the world are now centred, for New England readers exclusively through the columns of the Boston American. Dr. Dillon will write upon the preliminaries leading up to the main Peace Conference and upon the Versailles sessions.

By DR. E. J. DILLON.

Special Cable to the Boston American and Philadelphia Public Ledger. Copyright in the United States and Canada by the Philadelphia Ledger Company. Copyright in Europe by London Daily Telegraph.

Paris, Jan. 8.—A powerful press campaign is going forward with the object of swaying public opinion in the direction of a military expedition to combat Bolshevism in Eastern Europe and the Journals are picturing vividly sinister consequences to the civilized world which a spread of the anarchist movement would engender, but it seems unlikely that in the present circumstances the Allied governments will venture to contribute the requisite contingents of troops for the purpose.

Unquestionably the actual situation in Eastern Europe constitutes one, but only one, of several formidable hindrances to the remodelling of the state system on Wilsonian lines. The longer Bolshevism remains a hold on fallen autocracies, the further will the political social ideals of the civilized world recede into the distant future, but gauging the obscure situation by various symptoms inadequate yet significant, of which I have received confidence from Russia, I am disposed to look less pessimistically on the condition of affairs there.

The resolve to unite and create an agency for the expression of the national will is manifested in every political party from the zemstvo liberals to the conservative clubs and monarchists, and all profess certain democratic principles and readiness to abide by the result of elections to a constituent assembly.

As all these provincial governments appear to be animated by a single-minded determination to rescue the nation from the slough of despond at any and every cost to their own party's interests, there is reason to hope for some amelioration in the near future. Meanwhile, anti-Bolshevist Russia is preparing to assert its voice in the Western world.

SAZONOFF ON WAY TO PARIS.

According to private information I received today, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs Sazonoff is on his way to Paris, where he may act as the authorized spokesman of all the constitutive governments of Russia, whose confidence he possesses. It is possible that the Allies who have accepted delegates of certain newly created states which do not yet possess elected governments or parliaments may receive Sazonoff as the representative of Russia, which is in a similar condition.

I am personally well acquainted with the Russian ex-minister, with whom I worked for several years, and always found him conscientious and moderate, and not indifferent to the exigencies of the time nor wedded to abstract doctrines. He will arrive in Rome within a week or ten days on his way here, where he will doubtless be heard in some capacity, possibly as a Russian delegate, by the conference. Four Russian governments, which are hindered only by geographical distances and Bolshevist barriers from coalescing in one, are hopeful that his arrival may mark the turning point in the appalling Russian crisis.

BELGIANS SURVIVE SAVAGERY.

How did the Belgian people survive the savagery, physical hardships and grinding oppression that characterized the four and a quarter years of German domination? asks the traveller who notices the hale and hearty fealance of the children, the unsubdued energy of the young generation, the relative neatness of the tenanted houses and the air of quiet self-reliance that marks most people with whom he comes in contact.

The answers are many. The rich in Belgium as in Central Europe were always able to procure almost everything they wanted. Their golden key opened the doors in all storehouses. The poverty-stricken sacrificed partly their capital and partly their habits and tastes and ate and drank more sparingly and contented themselves with coarser food than before.

In this way they too emerged from the ordeal safe if not unscathed, and really poor were fed by the charity of America and other countries are today seemingly little the worse for their four and a quarter less years.

Seemingly it is the numerous class whose members were neither descendants nor well-to-do who suffered the agonies of hunger, cold and other wasting diseases. Among these death reaped an abundant harvest, alongside those who had no work, insufficient food, nothing more to hope for.

Many of those who eked out a miserable existence through the dark years have constitutions undermined and with stigmata injured permanently. Physicians tell me the autumnal chills or cold or a slight influenza which in normal times would be shaken off in a few days bring about death with startling rapidity among the healthiest looking of these people and also in the class just above them.

BELGIUM DESTROYED.

King Albert's dominions, it has been said, are not any worse off than France, some of whose cities have been literally razed to the ground. To this way of stating the matter the Belgian demurs and rejects the comparison as misleading. I have been over the devastated district of France as well as Belgium and examined them by day and experienced their fascinating influence by night.

I have crossed propped bridges near Peronne in the dark, stood beside tottering walls of Cambrai and Bapaume, and the destruction there is indeed wanton and thorough, but the difference which the Belgians point to is obvious.

In some parts of France the villages, towns, gardens and trees have been literally annihilated, and the spirit of fiendish hate is embodied in the endless mazes of rubbish heaps; but France as a State retained her outlets to the sea, preserved many great manufacturing industries and, crowded others. Her international trade and commerce went on even during the darkest days of the crisis and she remained at all times free in her intercourse with foreign countries.

Belgium on the contrary besides having her towns and cities ground into crimson dust, was destroyed as a State. The kingdom ceased to exist, the great industrial establishments were closed down, blast furnaces extinguished and the plants transported to Germany where they have been working and producing to this day.

Belgium forfeited everything she had and was, including her liberty, to the Teuton, and the bulk of her soil covered heaps of wood and drawers of water to the ruthless invader, and the armistice has brought no marked betterment as yet.

PARLIAMENT REOPENS.

Parliament has opened its portals after fifty-four months to deputies, many of whom will be swept back into private life by the brushing tide of democracy.

For now elections are at hand and will be held on terms of universal suffrage and women's vote. This innovation involves a change in the constitution which cannot legally be effected by the present Parliament, but the lawmakers, setting themselves above the law, have decreed that the constitution shall be modified, and modified it will be. The precedent, however, is not free from danger, especially in stirring times like these when hallowed old institutions are summarily flung into the rubbish.

In a sense legality has been somewhat blunted in Belgium during the last year of the war owing to a curious incident which throws a bright light on the patriotism and possibly a corresponding shadow on the forethought of certain leaders of the nation in the days of its tribulation.

It came about in this way. Some members of the Council of Flanders, that unchastised body created by the Germans for the purpose of setting Walloons and Flemings by the ears, were arrested by orders of the Belgian authorities for some real or alleged breach of law. Thereupon the German superauthorities, overriding the native tribunals, refused to allow the accused to be brought to trial and released them forthwith, thus conferring a sort of inviolability upon political apostates.

Barber Gives Recipe For Gray Hair

Mr. A. E. O'Brien, who has been a barber in New York city for many years, made the following statement: "Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

"Merely get a small box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for mixing and use and a gold bond guarantee come in each box. One box will last you for months.

"It is perfectly safe, it does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger."—Advertisement.

THE DEAF HEAR

"I am 72 years old and I had been deaf as the result of the measles in early youth. As I grew older the deafness grew more and more until it was difficult for me to hear the telephone or door bell. I read so much testimonials from the deaf whose hearing had been restored by the Otomic Phonic Treatment that I was induced to accept their liberal offer of FREE trial treatment. And Mrs. [illegible] of Pembroke St., Boston, the undersigned, will say that the Otomic Phonic Treatment restored my hearing when all else failed. I obtained the names of my book and in almost every instance I have suffered all my life from headache. At that time (as doctors had told me) I would never get over my headache. I tried everything: liniments, ointments, plasters without success. Now judge of my surprise, under the influence of the Otomic Phonic treatment my hearing not only improved vastly but the old headache that had been such a source of suffering for so many years entirely disappeared. I am truly grateful for my restoration to hearing, so that other sufferers may be benefited by this remarkable treatment."

This wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in the cure of CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASES, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASES, BIRTH MARKS, MOLES, FACIAL BLEMISHES, ETC.

Write today what your condition may be, remember that the Otomic Phonic doctor gives CONSULTATION and a Trial Treatment and Medicines, Absolutely FREE to all who call before Jan. 12.

FRIENDS GUARD ROOSEVELT GRAVE

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Jan. 9.—Theodore Roosevelt sleeps today in the little country cemetery. Standing guard at his grave through the still watches of the night were Lieutenant C. P. Reynolds of East Norwich, a neighboring village, and five of Oyster Bay's prominent men, all ardent admirers and personal friends of the colonel.

It is a voluntary guard of honor, charge of which was assumed by Lieutenant Reynolds, recently honorably discharged from the American army.

"Theodore, may the Lord bless you and keep you; may the Lord lift up His countenance upon you and give you peace."

These impressive words, spoken solemnly in benediction at the little church where the funeral service was held, brought tears to the eyes of many persons, who made no effort to conceal them.

Tears coursed down the cheeks of Bishop Frederick K. Burgess, who sat near the bier. Dr. George A. Talmadge, rector of Christ Episcopal church, but took no part in the service.

Tears glistened upon the cheeks of former President William Howard Taft and of Vice-President Marshall and of "Uncle Joe" Cannon and many scores of the 500 in the little edifice where the Roosevelt family has worshipped for years.

The service was of Puritan simplicity; indeed it surpassed Puritanism in simplicity, for the organ was hushed and no hymns were sung.

Mrs. Roosevelt felt unequal to the strain of attending the church service and the committal ceremony at the grave. She viewed her husband's face for the last time after the private service at Sagamore Hill, then remained alone with her grief as the cortege passed from view.

The great and the humble rubbed elbows, sharing a common grief at the three brief services. The Vice-President of the United States, former Presidents, United States Senators and Representatives, Governors of States—all were on the same footing with the negro servants and other retainers of the Roosevelt family.

WHO NEEDS THIS MEDICINE?

Only One Way to Know, Declares Writer.

Seeks to Educate Public the Value of Good Health.

Recommends Tonic Under Certain Conditions.

A well-known physician is quoted as saying that "Careless habits, evil habits and spasmodic habits result in fatalities whenever an epidemic disease appears in a community."

It should be self-evident that excesses and indulgences of whatsoever kind bring about a condition of low vitality. To have low vitality is to be partially sick, to remain so, gives free rein to fatal disease germs. It is duty and common sense to remove low vitality.

Do you catch cold too easily? Are you weak, irritable, nervous and worn out before the day is half over? Have you aches and pains of unknown origin? Are you too thin and seem highly "studious"? Do you have tremors and unsound fears? Do you lack energy and ambition? Are you despondent without reason? Is your digestion faulty and your appetite fickle? Do you suffer with dreadful pains in the back of your head? Do you have shooting pains like neuralgia and rheumatism?

If any or all of these symptoms are yours then a tonic medicine like Cadomene Tablets should bring relief, health and strength, if taken regularly with meals. Three grain Cadomene Tablet has often been called the "miracle medicine" because it is so quickly effective in restoring strong, rugged, "happy" vitality.

Sold in sealed tubes by druggists everywhere and each package is guaranteed to please the buyer or money refunded.—Advertisement.

BOSTON LOSES THROUGH SCARCITY OF DRY DOCKS

Boston's lack of dry-dock facilities and its disastrous effects to the city were emphasized today by the departure of the British steamer Alsiosus for New York, because she could not repair a leak here. She will finish loading in New York. About the time the British steamer started for New York the Brazilian steamer Jandyra, which has been waiting her turn for ten days, entered into the only adequate dry-dock in the port, which is located in East Boston. The Brazilian ship is huge. Back along the water front say that today's experience shows the truth of the article about dry-dock facilities which was printed in the Boston Sunday Advertiser and American last Sunday.

RECORD PRICES ARE PAID FOR HADDOCK AND HAKE

Haddock and hake brought record prices today at the Fish Pier, where five schooners brought in small fishing. The high prices are a result of the coal shortage caused by the striking railroad shopmen. Haddock brought 10½ cents per pound, and hake 6½ cents paid by wholesalers to the fishermen.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief for Acid Indigestion.

Sensible stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas and sour stomach are and inability to retain food are in probability due to acidity. Every physician knows that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion. The gas presses on the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes called heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid in the stomach.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

As antacid, such as bisurated magnesia should be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form, and a teaspoonful or two in a little water properly without the aid of artificial stimulation is widely admitted by authorities, so he certain to ask for and take only bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

Western range steers	10.00@13.00

These newspaper quotations represent live cattle prices in Chicago on December 30th, 1918.

The list shows price ranges on nine general classified groups with a spread of $13.85 per cwt.—the lowest at $6.50, and the highest at $20.35.

Why this variation in price?

Because the meat from different animals varies greatly in quality and weight.

Although the quotations shown are in nine divisions, Swift & Company grades cattle into 34 general classes, and each class into a variety of weights and qualities.

As a result of these differences in cattle prices, (due to differences in weights and meat qualities), there is a range of 15 cents in Swift & Company's selling prices of beef carcasses.

These facts explain:

1—Why retail prices vary in different stores.

2—Why it would be difficult to regulate prices of cattle or beef.

3—Why it requires experts to judge cattle and to sell meat, so as to yield the profit of only a fraction of a cent a pound—a profit too small to affect prices.

All persons desiring to entertain soldiers or sailors in hotels, restaurants or private homes may invite them through the Boston American, stating the number of guests desired. Address all communications to the Soldiers' Friend, Boston American, 30 Winthrop square, Boston.

Inquirers must give their names and addresses if they desire to have questions answered. These will not be published, if the writers so request. The pseudonym or initials which they suggest will always be used in answers published in this column, but the writer's name and address is required also.

To whom shall I write to have my husband released from the U. S. army draft? He was drafted last September and is now in France. His address is Company B, 25th Engineers.

LONESOME WIFE.

You cannot secure his discharge before he is returned home. His company is at sea[illegible] at last reports to the War Department, if that is of interest to you. His regiment has not been assigned to return home yet. Until it comes, I fear that your writing to anybody would be of no value.

My husband is in the Headquarters Company, 103d P. A., 26th Division. Where are they situated and will they be home during the coming week. If not, when?

GIRLIE.

They will not be home this week, and when they will return is problematical. The 26th has not yet been ordered home. Divisional headquarters at last reports were at Montigny-le-Roi, with the division sector billets thereabouts.

H. T. C.—The 6th Infantry is in the 3d Division, Army of Occupation, in Germany. They are not assigned to return home. Mail troubles with the Army of Occupation seem to be very common indeed. The authorities, I believe, attribute it to difficulty of transportation.

In what division is the machine gun troop of the 6th Cavalry, and where are they located? Will the men enlisted in this troop for the duration of the war be sent home as soon as possible, or held overseas until peace is signed?

ANXIOUS PARENTS.

The 6th Cavalry is not regularly attached to any division. Combatant American divisions of the present war do not include cavalry. I have no information as to their exact location just at present. The regiment may or may not be held overseas for some time. It has not been designated to return.

In what division is Battery D, 240th Field Artillery? Are they coming home soon? Have they been at the front?

A LOWELL SISTER.

In the 90th Division, not designated for early convoy home. They were at the front in Lieutenant-General Hunter Liggett's army.

A friend, having been a prisoner in Germany for the past seven months, has not been heard from directly. Have all prisoners been released from Rastatt? Will he be sent back to France, and returned to his regiment, or sent home? Do you think he will receive mail addressed to his own company, by adding "formerly a prisoner of Germany"? Are all prisoners sent to camp before returning home, or if in perfect health will he be put with the Army of Occupation?

A PRISONER'S FRIEND.

Men are being released all the time, and are returning to the forces or being sent home as fast as possible. Mail addressed as you suggest will probably reach him eventually. It is impossible to say what will be done with him. In my opinion, he will probably be sent home very soon, for German prison camps do not usually leave men very fit for active duty.

Can you ascertain the whereabouts of Private Harrison Gorin, Company I, 20th Infantry, 3d Division? His last letter was dated in August.

HIS WIFE.

His unit is in Germany, in the Army of Occupation. That is where he is, unless he has been injured. Write to the Adjutant-General, War Department, Washington, D. C.

J. J. M., DORCHESTER.—The present location of Company 228, P. W. E., is not known. It has not been designated to return.

GIRLS! TRY IT! HAVE THICK, WAVY, BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Every particle of dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine" hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely invest a few cents in a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter, and just try it.

Save your hair! Beautify it! You will say this was the best money you ever spent.—Advertisement.

12 LIVES SAVED BY SENATOR WEEKS' SON

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Jan. 9—Suffering from wounds and the effects of a German gas attack at St. Mihiel, Private Walter J. McCann of B Battery, 101st Field Artillery, whose home is at No. 1322 Washington street, West Newton, declared his life and that of eleven others were saved as a result of the assistance rendered by Captain Sinclair Weeks, son of United States Senator Weeks in having them removed from a hill to a base hospital when they were thoroughly exhausted and unable to move.

McCann was one of a party of sixty-seven overseas men who arrived here on a special train from Newport News and were sent to the base hospital. He is twenty-four years old. He was with the 26th Division when that organization landed in France and received his military training in Boxford. He said he and his eleven comrades were compelled to stay in a French box car all day with a French attendant who did not understand English and who could not be made to understand that they wanted water to drink in the worst way.

SHELLED BY GAS BOMBS.

"At 10 o'clock on the evening of October 9 we were in a dugout at St. Mihiel," said McCann. "The Germans opened a terrific bombardment of our division. We thought we were safe. The bombardment was followed by a shower of high explosives. My comrades were trying to get a few hours' sleep. I got a bad odor of gas. All this time the explosives were bursting over us. It turned out that we were being shelled by gas bombs.

"This sort of bombardment lasted four hours. Later the attack was continued. The gas began to pour through the air. It was stifling. At 4 a. m. I began to suffer from the effects. I aroused the others and told them we were being gassed. They got up and began to stagger. Oh, it was terrible. We became weak and had to lay down awhile with our nostrils to the ground.

WEEKS COMES TO RESCUE.

"Lieutenant Sayer came into the dugout and inquired for us. 'We're all gassed,' I said. We were coughing furiously and gasping for breath. The lieutenant told us to crawl out of the dugout and get up on a nearby hill. We were exhausted and tried to reach the hill when we collapsed.

"A runner who saw our condition hastened to Captain Sinclair Weeks, son of United States Senator Weeks, and told him of our condition. He feared a German attack and fought his way to where we were lying and he had a detail lift us from the ground and hurry us to a place of safety. It was a perfect —— for us. I want to say here that Captain Weeks is made of the right stuff and showed his bravery and kindness toward us.

Private Walter Otis Allen of a machine gun company, whose parents live at No. 19 Charles street, Woburn, was with Pershing's first division in France eighteen months. He was in most of the battles fought and was wounded by a machine gun bullet in the left thigh at Verdun.

Boston Bulldog Insignia of Fighting 26th Overseas Boys

A Boston bulldog has been adopted as the insignia of the 102nd Machine Gun Battalion and Headquarters Troop, 26th Division, formerly First Massachusetts Cavalry, according to information received by friends in this city who are to conduct a "tag day" drive in Greater Boston on Saturday to raise money for the welfare of the officers and men. The dog's face now appears in the corners of the poster disguised today and on the tags that are to be sold Saturday.

HOOVER APPEALS FOR PRIVATE BENEVOLENCE

New York, Jan. 9—Private benevolences is needed to help the relief work in the Near East, according to a cable message received here by the American committee for relief in the Near East from Herbert C. Hoover. The message follows:

"The world relief program now being developed by the United States and the allies contemplates that wherever possible relief work will be financed by the countries affected, through the medium of loans, or other government assistance. Nevertheless, distress and suffering exists in many areas where payment for relief supplies cannot be made. These cases will still urgently need private benevolence.

"This is the situation with regard to the Armenians, Syrians and Persians. There is probably no greater suffering today than among the persecuted people of Asia Minor, who have no other funds, cannot procure government loans and have no other credit.

"It is to aid this distressed situation that your committee for Armenian and Syrian relief is making its appeal to the generosity of the American people."

ENGINEERS GRATEFUL FOR HOLIDAY FEAST

Frank S. Murray of East Braintree, President of City Point Lodge of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, has received a letter from Captain A. W. Race of E Company, 14th Engineers, A. E. F., made up of men recruited from the eastern end of the New Haven Railroad, thanking him for funds which came just right to provide a splendid Thanksgiving dinner. Captain Race acknowledged receipt of $250 last sent, also of $400 previously sent, which was collected by President Murray's committee. Captain Race wrote that the Thanksgiving feast was served in an old Boche ammunition shed. It was complete, from chicken soup to cigars and cigarettes.

SEEK $15,000 DAMAGES FOR INJURY BY AUTO

James E. Rice of Everett is defendant in three suits filed against him for $15,000 in the Norfolk Superior Court by Ida Lewis, John E. Lewis and Richard J. Lewis, all of Norwood, who seek to recover for personal injuries sustained on Washington street, Norwood, November 7, 1915, when, they allege, they were run into by an automobile owned by the defendant.

Naval Academy Examination

Announcement is made by Congressman F. W. Dallinger of a competitive examination for the Naval Academy at Annapolis which will be held February 8 at the Custom House.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. If desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup; either way it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used by millions for throat and chest ailments.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for 2½ ounces of Pinex, with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just pure, unrefined cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful to all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

Man Who Lost Himself

By H. DE VERE STACPOOLE

Humorous Tale of a Philadelphia Business Man Who Had a Title Thrust Upon Him

CHAPTER XXI.—Continued

"I WANT to see the gentleman who runs this place."

"Dr. Hoover, sir?"

"Yes."

"Certainly, sir. I will sing and have him sent for."

He rang the bell, a servant answered and went off with the message.

Jones took up the paper again and resumed his cigarette. Five minutes passed and then the door opened and a gentleman entered.

A pleasant faced, clean-shaven man of fifty, dressed in blue serge and with a rose in his button-hole, such was Dr. Hoover. But the eye of the man held him also—keen, piercing, a blue gray eye, keen, sharp, hard, for all the smile upon the pleasant face.

Jones rose up.

"Dr. Hoover, I think," said he.

"Good morning," said the other in a hearty voice. "This day, isn't it? Well, how are we this morning?"

"Oh, I'm all right," said Jones. "I want to have a little talk with you." He went to the bedroom door, shut what was slightly ajar, and closed it.

"For your sake," said Jones, "it's just as well we have no one listening, the attendant is in there—you are sure he cannot hear what we say, even with the door shut?"

Owned His Fault

"Quite," said Hoover, with a benign smile.

He was used to things like this, profoundly confidential communications concerning claims to crowns and principalities, or grumbles about food.

He did not expect what followed.

"I am not going to murder at your having me here," said Jones; "it's my fault for playing practical jokes. I didn't think they'd go the length of doping me and locking me up under the name I gave them."

"And what name was that?" asked Hoover kindly.

"Jones."

"Oh, and now tell me, if you are not Mr. Jones, who are you?"

"Who am I? Well, I can excuse the question. I'm the Earl of Rochester."

This was a nasty one for Hoover, but that gentleman's face showed nothing.

"Indeed," said he; "then why did you call yourself Jones?"

"For a joke. I slung them a yarn, and they took it in. They must have got a draught to compose my nerves, they thought really that I was dotty, and I drank it. Do you have seen the condition I was in when I got here."

"Hum! hum!" said Hoover. He was used to the extremely cunning ways of gentlemen off their balance, and he had a printed brief from Simms and Cavendish, whose names indorsed the certificate of lunacy he had received with the newcomer. He was also a man just as cunning as Jones.

"Well," he said, with an air of absolute frankness, "this takes me by surprise; a practical joke, but why did you play such a practical joke?"

"I know!" said Jones, "it was stupid; just a piece of tom-foolery, but you see how I am landed."

Dr. Hoover ignored this evasion whilst noting it.

Then he began to ask all sorts of little questions, seemingly, irrelevant enough, but aimed to think that he was morally justified in carrying out such a practical joke? And he did so as at once it was a practical joke after the affair had reached a certain point. Was his memory as good as of old? Was he sure in his own mind that he was the Earl of Rochester? Was he sure that as the Earl of Rochester he could hold that title against a claim that was not the case? (Give details and so forth.)

"Now suppose," said Dr. Hoover, "I were to call the chief in with you and say you are Mr. Jones and I am the Earl of Rochester, how would you establish your claim. I am simply asking, to find out whether what you consider to be a practical joke was in fact a slight lapse of memory on your part, a slight mind disturbance such as is easily caused by fatigue or overwork, and which often leaves effects lasting some weeks or months.

"Now I must point out to you that as—practical joke or not—you came here calling yourself Mr. Jones, I would be justified in asking you for proof that you are not Mr. Jones. See my point?"

"Quite."

Memory Test

"Well, then, prove your case," said the physician jovially.

"How can I."

"Well, if you are the Earl of Rochester, let me test your memory. Who is your banker?"

"Coutts."

Hoover did not know who the Earl of Rochester's banker might be, but the promptness of the reply satisfied him of its truth. The promptness was also an index of sanity. He passed at a venture to a subject on which he was acquainted.

"And how many brothers and sisters have you?"

That was fatal.

Jones' eye fell under the pressure of Hoover's.

"There is no use in going on with these absurd questions," said he, "a thing everyone knows."

"But I just want to prove to you," said Hoover, gently, "that your mind, which in a week from now, will have quite recovered, is still a little bit shaky—now how long is it since you succeeded to the title? It's just a test memory question."

Jones did not know. He saw that he was lost. He had also gained an appreciation of Hoover. Beside the fat simple and the cadaverous Cavendish, Hoover seemed a man of keen common sense.

Jones recognized that the new position into which he had strayed was a blind alley. If he were detained on lunacy no memory could answer questions of which his mind knew nothing, he would be detained forever. He came to the grand determination to try back.

"Look here," said he, "let's be straight with one another. I can't answer your questions. Now if you are a man of sense, as I take you to be, and not a man like those others, who think everyone but themselves is mad, you will recognize what I am to answer questions. I'm not Rochester. I thought I'd get out of here by pretending that I'd played a practical joke on those guys; it was a false move, I acknowledge it, but when I fixed on the idea, I didn't know the man I had to deal with. If you will listen to my story, I will tell you in a few words how all this business came about."

"Go on," said Hoover.

Jones told, and Hoover listened, and when the tale was over, at the end of a quarter of an hour or so, Jones scarcely knew what to think. It sounded crazy. Much more crazy than when he had told it to the Duke of Medford and the reason of this difference was Hoover. There was something in Hoover's eye, something in his make up and personality, something veiled and critical, that destroyed confidence.

A Reasonable Request

It was a cold night. The traveler inquired at the only hotel in the village if he could be lodged for the night, but was informed that it was full up.

"But you must give me some sort of accommodation," said the stranger. "Surely you don't want me to sleep in the road?"

"Well," said the proprietor, "the best we can do is to make you up a bed in the passage and curtain it off for you," and so it was arranged.

In the middle of the night the traveler awoke. A freezing draught chilled him, and the curtain which had been hung up as a partition was blowing merrily in the breeze. He shouted for the landlord.

"What is it?" queried a voice from the stairhead.

"Please," said the stranger, timidly, "may I have a few pins to lock my bedroom door with?"

His Toast

At a wedding breakfast a gentleman noted for his lack of tact rose to propose a toast. "Ladies and gentlemen," he said gaily, "I propose the health of the bridegroom. May he see many days like this!"

ANECDOTES OF THE FAMOUS

Sir Thomas Beecham, the famous conductor, is to France learning to fly. He is sometimes referred to as "the man with the magic hands," on account of his wonderful facility for controlling orchestras merely by gestures. Musical England owes Sir Thomas a real debt of gratitude, for no man has made greater efforts to popularize grand opera.

It was one night at Drury Lane that he told this story, as an illustration of real devotion:

"Are you sure you love me?" said a pretty girl to her admirer. "Love you?" echoed the smitten one. "Why, darling, while I was bidding you good-by on the porch last night your dog bit a piece out of the calf of my leg, and I never noticed it till I got home."

Here is a good Beatty story from the lips of an ex-navy man who was serving under Admiral Beatty — then captain—at the time the incident occurred.

He had under his command two very "hard cases" of men who were always being brought before him on one charge or another. One day he asked how what punishment they considered they deserved. "Shot at sunset, sir!" replied one man meekly, and the other concurred.

"Right!" said Beatty. "March them away."

At sunset the prisoners were marched on deck and hailed right in line with the turret guns. They were then blindfolded, and Beatty ordered one of the gun crews to load and fire.

It is impossible to train any of a boat's guns on to its own deck, but the men forgot this in the excitement of the moment. The shock cured them, and they never troubled Beatty again.

John MacCormack, the famous tenor, who ranks with Caruso as one of the highest-paid singers of the world, tells this story:

"As a college boy my voice was in demand for the college concerts, and being by birth an Irishman I, with true patriotic spirit, sang an Irish song at one of these. Later I interviewed Biddy, our Irish cook, to whom I had given a ticket for the entertainment.

"'Oh, sure, sir, you did sing beautifully, she said. 'But, sir, why are you sing in a foreign language? I did not know a word of it.'

"Crushing criticism indeed, but it was a terrible lesson in elocution, and one that I have had to heart."

Shall women sit in the House of Lords? Everyone is asking that question, and Lady Rhondda, Her Irish and business management are invaluable to the enormous collieries employing 20,000 men which her father had controlled, and which she in turn is helping to manage.

Wales is proud of her. She is their Lady Rhondda!—"as good as she is clever," they will tell you at the pit heads.

The Heart Breaker

CHAPTER XXVI.

Copyright, 1913, Star Company.

EMILY to the wreck Honora Brent received a letter from Mrs. Higgins. Her sister was still very ill. Could Honora and Mildred spare their housekeeper for a few days longer?

"It's a nuisance," Mildred commented when Honora read the letter to her, "but it can't be helped. Yet the extra work falls on you, not on me. Perhaps because," with a smile, "I don't bother about it. I just let you do all the planning, ordering and everything. I don't know why."

"Perhaps because I have always taken it for granted that I am the one to do it when Mrs. Higgins is away or ill," Honora ventured.

"Well, there's one good thing about Mrs. Higgins' absence," Mildred said suddenly. "We can do as we please without fear of shocking her. What she doesn't know won't hurt her. Now," with an air of defiance, "for instance—I am going tonight to the theatre with Tom Chandler."

"Oh—are you!" Honora exclaimed, surprised. "I did not know it."

"No, I did not mention it," Mildred replied. "Tom called on me last night and asked me to go, and I'm going."

"Alone?"

Mildred nodded. "Yes, alone. By the way, what are you going to do tonight?"

"Stay at home and read," was the quiet answer.

"You don't mind my going, do you?" Mildred asked.

"If I did, it wouldn't make much difference," Honora tried to speak lightly. "You know what you are doing."

Mildred shrugged her shoulders. "He's a good sport," she affirmed. "And so am I. Therefore I mean to get all the fun that comes my way."

Honora steadied her voice before asking—"what about Arthur?"

"I am trying them both out," was the joyous reply. "Oh, don't fuss, Honora! I have them both where I want them. I can," with a triumphant toss of the head, "crack either of them I want. I know I stand first with them both."

Honora remembered this conversation that evening as she sat in the library awaiting her sister's return. It was almost twelve o'clock.

The older sister laid down the book she had been reading all the evening and went into the darkened living room. She was too nervous to read any longer.

Peering out, she saw a couple standing at the top of the steps. The screen of vines on the verandah hid them from the street, but not from the observer at the window.

Honora caught her breath in horrified amazement. Then Milly and Tom were engaged! If not, Milly would strike him, order him away, rush from him into the house.

But, instead, Mildred laughed softly as the man released her.

Running out into the hall, she flung open the front door. As she did so the pair on the verandah were just speaking their good-nights.

"Good evening, Miss Honora!" Tom greeted her with mock formality. "I return your sister to you safe and sound. We've had a delightful evening. That show we went to is well worth seeing."

When he had gone and the sisters were facing each other in the hall, Honora asked a little coldly:

"Milly, are you engaged to Tom Chandler?"

The girl colored even more deeply than before. "I can be it I want to be," she boasted. "But I must think it over. But, Honora, he certainly is smitten with me. He just told me that there is not another girl in the world that he gives a hang's turn for. He says I have spoiled other girls for him—he finds them so different from me. I may end by caring for him—who knows?"

To Relieve Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness or who are growing hard of hearing and have head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have done them the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be filled at any drug store and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar, stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus relieve the head noises, but also on the theory that by correcting catarrhal conditions in the middle ear and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form, or distressing rumbling, blowing sounds in their ears, should give this recipe a trial.

Don't trifle with a cold —it's dangerous.

You can't afford to risk Influenza.

Keep always at hand a box of

CASCARA BROMIDE QUININE

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

* * *

To prevent cheese from getting mouldy wrap it in a cloth that has been dipped in vinegar and wrung as dry as possible. Keep in a cool place.

The Hidden Truth

A New Motion Picture With Anna Case, the Famous Opera Star

By Jane McLean

(Novelized from the motion picture play, "The Hidden Truth." Film version copyrighted, Produced by International Film Service Company, Inc., under the personal direction of Julius Steger. The film rights now being released by Select Pictures Corporation.)

THE time of Helen's revelation to Charles Taylor was approaching faster than she knew. The same destiny that had tangled the skeins of her life while she was in Nugget City was still busy, though she did not know it more now than then.

In the house affairs settled down to the same charming routine; the girl made many friends; her simplicity, her beauty and her naturalness came as a relief to the city-bred young women with whom she was thrown and made her quite the rage.

Meanwhile, under the kindly chaperonage of Mrs. Colling, she blossomed forth under the many advantages offered by her environment of culture and luxury.

Judge Blake, dropping into his friend's office, paused in a business discussion to remark on the increasing charm of his ward.

He knew he would find a ready listener, and he was not disappointed, but, having spent a half-hour dilating on the perfections of the girl from Colorado, he came to the point with a remark about "The Golden Chain."

"Talking about the glories of the West," said the Judge, "have you heard anything from Reed today? I understand he is waiting for a talk with you on the prospect out there."

Taylor had thought little of late about the mining venture which had once attracted his attention. Now, however, he was faced with the need of action and met the Judge's assertion with agreement.

"We'll know him over now if you can spare a little time and hear what he has to say."

Reed Is Ready

The mining expert had played his cards well. When he entered the office of the man he hoped to rob he did not appear too eager to prate. He was content with optimistic to what the desire of the two men to buy.

"Glad to see you," said Taylor cordially. "I'm afraid we gave you a difficult job out in that country, but if there's anything in the judgment I'd trust, you're that man."

Reed acknowledged this compliment with a slight bow, and the Judge, puffing a cigar, waited for the details which the expert would be able to furnish.

"Sit down," said Taylor. "We want to know all about your investigations. Then we can give a final answer."

Reed had brought with him several rough samples of ore from the various levels of the mine and these he produced from the depths of a small bag.

"I'll lay these on your desk, Mr. Taylor," he said, "and you can compare them as we go along.

"In the first place, this mine is one of the ventures of the Kinney group; they worked it quite a while and then gave it up as a bad job. It appears that this fellow Keech, who spends most of his time prospecting abandoned properties, happened to run across it, and struck where a lot of seemingly bad ground had crumbled a good proportion of gold and some silver.

"They were very sad how to amplify his discovery. For that purpose he worked for a couple of months at the same spot and as a result wrote you——"

"Why not the Kinneys?" asked the judge.

"Well, he was afraid they'd do him out of his find," answered Reed, with apparent frankness. "He'd heard of Mr. Taylor and took a chance with him on his reputation for square dealing."

Taylor smiled—his reputation in the business world justified one of the assets dearest to his heart.

"I'm glad I'm so favorably known so far from home," he interjected.

"This fellow Keech," went on Reed, "took into his confidence a man named Bill Sheridan, a sort of general factotum at Nugget City—keeps the hotel and as on—and Sheridan put up a little money to make him in still further investigations; at least, that's the way it comes to me."

"I don't imagine they could fool you much," said Taylor dryly.

"No, I don't think they could!" answered the other. "Well, when I got there they were inclined to give me the whole works, and I took that as a favorable sign. They seemed to bank on your name for giving them a fair play, and I was able to look about as much as I liked.

"It took quite a while, but I must say that, even allowing for their extravagant hopes of the mine, they have not been misjudged. These specimens here are like some I have already sent, and they bear out our earlier analysis."

"Then the mine is really a find?" put in the judge.

"It's all of that!" answered Reed.

"And they are willing to sell for $300,000?" said Taylor.

The Judge Approves

"They are, and of course that includes a perfectly good title, which I have been at some pains to have straightened out. The Kinneys have been very fair about what he appears to be, and they make no bones about letting the shaft go. As far as they are concerned you have a clear deed. Naturally the deposit you sent on clinched the deal. Money talks there as here."

"I believe you have a map of the district, Mr. Taylor," said Reed.

The lawmate produced one from the drawer of his desk, and the three men went over it in detail. Later they examined the ore specimens and the results of the assayist who had passed upon them.

"Well, Judge, what do you think?"

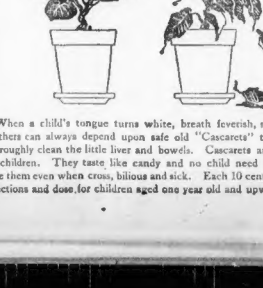
"Mother's Tender Flowers"

Watch the tongue of your young!

Children droop and wither if you permit constipation poison to be absorbed into their delicate systems.

Hurry! Give Cascarets to clean the little clogged-up liver and bowels. Children love harmless Cascarets because Cascarets taste like candy—only 10 cents a box! Grand!



When a child's tongue turns white, breath feverish, stomach sour, mothers can always depend upon safe old "Cascarets" to gently, yet thoroughly clean the little liver and bowels. Cascarets are just dandy for children. They taste like candy and no child need be coaxed to take them even when cross, bilious and sick. Each 10 cent box contains directions and dose for children aged one year old and upwards.

KID NORFOLK KAYOS TURNER IN SHORT, RAPID BATTLE

By NICK FLATLEY.

CLAY TURNER must have dreamed all the rocks taken out of the way of the Panama Canal fell on him when Kid Norfolk, who comes from the short cut district, thumped him on the chin in the fourth round of their quarrel at the Armory show. Clay must have seen all the Indian constellations there are and a few extra as he was sagging to the mat.

Which is our way of saying that Kid Norfolk landed a vicious right hook on Turner's chin in the round mentioned, and knocked him cold. The Indian came back to semi-consciousness as the count was being tolled, tried to rise, toppled back, and was declared out and licked.

There were claims that the count was shy and that it was too rapid, but to us it seemed right enough. The startling finish came with such suddenness everybody was surprised, greatly. The fight had come out for the fourth round. Turner has beaten Norfolk badly in the third—had him groggy, in fact, from left lobe to the jaw and right hooks to the diaphragm.

Norfolk weathered the gaff because he is about as tough as the car service nowadays. He took a flock of bangs on the jaw that would have staggered a marble statue. The negro had beaten Turner in the opening round, slightly. The latter came back in the second and took away the advantage. He showed fine hitting power, though he missed a lot of pseudo haymakers.

Norfolk Rushes In and Curtain Falls.

NORFOLK tore out of his corner for the fourth like a taxi driver with a pothook for its sight. He shot a couple of hard lefts to Turner's midriff, and backed him into a corner with a right uppercut. He kept at him, his right flashed. Turner went back against the ropes, flopped forward and lay "Lo," the poor Indian.

He was beaten sure enough, and even had he not been counted out, it would have been running needless risk to let the battle go on. The ecstasy, while it lasted, kept a crowd that packed the house cheering from the first bell. Although Turner beat Norfolk when the pair met before the dusky victor was a 10 to 6 favorite in the ranks of the speculative. We haven't found out what the well-known Doctor Watson thinks of this yet.

In the preliminaries Willie Roberts beat Johnny Martin in six chapters. Young Sharkey did the same for Young Andrews, and Sam Bell easily stopped Kid Mealey of Newark and many battles in the third round.

Greb to Meet Houck; All-Star Show at Central.

HARRY GREB, the sailor who is right up on the roof of the middleweight division, will make his first Boston appearance at the Armory next week, stacking up against Dave Houck. The latter, though a veteran, still has something the size of his locker, as he gave Battling Levinsky quite a tussle a short time back.

The rest of the card has Tom Lloyd meeting Battling Thomas in an eight-round go, as well as two six-rounders—Chick Miller vs. Matt Downey and Mike Travers vs. Charley (Kid) Miller.

The Central will put on an all-star show next Monday night, with those two favorite local youngsters, Charley Parker and Danny Kramer, showing their wares. Parker meets Jimmy Burns, while Kramer assaults Young Proto at the Armory. These will be ten-rounders, as will a Battling Reddy-Dave Astley affair. Silent Mike of Philadelphia and Chick Miller bout a six-round preliminary.

Josephs and Brindisi in Commercial Feature.

MANAGER McKIRDY has arranged another fighting card for the Commercial A. C. tomorrow evening.

Three ten-round events and a six-rounder are booked in one of which will be given a real test by Frankie Brindisi, the New Haven boy who fought Johnny Beat, the Scotch bantamweight, a draw.

BRAVES TO OPEN SEASON IN HUB PATRIOTS' DAY

Cincinnati, Jan. 9.—Pending changes, which may be made at the joint major league meeting in New York January 15, the schedule makers completed their work here.

President John A. Heydler of the National League made the following tentative announcement:

"The National League, as the schedule now stands, will open its season April 23 in Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Chicago, but will precede its formal opening with games, morning and afternoon, Patriots' Day, April 19, at Boston."

Heydler added the season will close September 6, and that the usual three trips from West to East and East to West had been incorporated.

FARMERS WANT U. S. TO TAKE RAILROADS

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A reconstruction program, essentially and emphatically heartening, is put up by the representatives of 1,500,000 farmers in national conference in Washington.

That the American railways shall be taken over and operated by the government, not for a five-year period, but permanently—just as soon as their real valuation can be ascertained and "some ten millions of gallons of water" are taken out of them," is a primary demand of the conference.

That the personal liberties of American citizens shrivled during the war shall be at once restored, is another demand.

The Farmers' National Conference, the largest body of farmers ever organized, is holding a three-days' session or conference. It includes:

First, the American Society of Equity; second, the Grange; third, the National Dairy Union; fourth, the National Creamery Butter Makers' Association; fifth, the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers; sixth, the National Wheat Growers' Association; seventh, the Rural Credits League of America, and eighth, a half-dozen war and industrial societies that have grown out of them.

The farmers' reconstruction program favors among other things:

"Government ownership and development of the transportation facilities of the country, both those still in public and those in private ownership, and vigorous government control of resources, while in private ownership.

"Government acquisition and operation of the railroads, pipe lines and express systems of the country, and government control of all inland waterway transportation to insure a unified system of transportation of passengers and freight as a government service, to be rendered at cost, government to hold and operate its merchant fleet, built to meet the war emergency.

Six Months' Pay for Every Soldier and Sailor Released From the Army and Navy

That Is the Very Least That the Nation Should Do and It Is Little Enough

The great problem and great duty before this country is to assure to the men taken into the army and navy a fair opportunity when they leave the service.

The millions of young men were taken away from their work, compelled to give up their positions, two million sent abroad, many killed and wounded, all kept in readiness to be sent.

Does the nation owe those men nothing?

Everybody knows that the end of war, the cessation of war contracts, the slowing down or closing up of many factories makes it difficult to find work.

Doesn't the nation owe something to the young men that were taken away from their regular work for the benefit of the country at large?

If this country could afford to spend from forty to fifty billions of dollars to protect itself in war, can't it afford to spend a little money to give the soldiers and sailors decent treatment and freedom from worry in peace?

You hear a great deal, and very properly, about the desire of the government to protect business men.

You hear that men who had ammunition contracts are actually going on with their contracts—although the government cannot use the stuff. Because the government feels that it owes something to business men that have changed their plants and adapted themselves to the government's needs. AND IT DOES owe them something.

You read that regular courts have been established in which business men can go, present their claims and show to the government that because they undertook work now interrupted, they are entitled to damages. The damages will be awarded, which is only just if the claim is just, and in some cases they will amount to millions for a single individual.

What about the young man taken from his work, put into the army and navy, then thrown out of the service? Is there no court where he can appear, is there no justice to be dealt out to him?

Has HE no claim, simply because he is nothing but a citizen of the United States, ready to fight for the United States it is true, but without any factory or bank account connected with his name?

This newspaper demands on behalf of millions of young men taken into the army and navy at least the commonest, ordinary justice—NOT GENEROSITY—which would be to allow them six months' full pay after they return to their homes, while they seek to place themselves in other work.

What would all the factories and money, all the law-makers from the President down have amounted to in this war had it not been for the young men READY TO FIGHT, go out into the battlefield and receive the bullets in their bodies?

How are you going to estimate the value of a man's willingness to be shot?

Can the country do less, at least, than show willingness to enable those men when they are dismissed from service to have enough to live on while they are settling themselves in some way to make a living?

We urge every reader of this newspaper to write to his Congressman and to the two Senators from his State AND SAY SO.

Not merely fathers and mothers, brothers, sisters or wives of soldiers and sailors are interested in this matter. The entire country is interested in it.

To give six months' pay to the soldier and sailor leaving the service would do more than free him from worry, prevent sudden glutting of the labor market, and give him an opportunity to look about.

Such minimum justice would protect other workers from sudden competition by a lot of men turned out by the government, in many cases without a dollar in their pocket.

We receive today a letter typical of many from the father of a young soldier. The young man left a job at thirty dollars a week. When he came home the job had been filled. After striving and worrying, he succeeded in placing himself at twelve dollars and a half a week—less than one-half he got before he left his place to serve the nation.

Is that thing to be duplicated over and over thousands of times. And, far worse, are thousands of those that come from the service of their country to find themselves unable even to get the twelve dollars and a half a week or less?

To protect the soldier and sailor against lack of work for a few months that they may look about them will protect more than them. It will prevent violent disruption of business, by a sudden influx of labor urgently seeking employment. It will protect men and women in the work that they have now. For many employers, with the best intentions, would naturally dismiss a civilian in order to make room for a soldier or sailor.

This is not what the soldiers and sailors want. They do not want to deprive any man or woman of a living. But they do want justice. They want at least a continuation of their pay for a short time, that they may be able to live while they look for work without harming or depriving of work any fellow citizen.

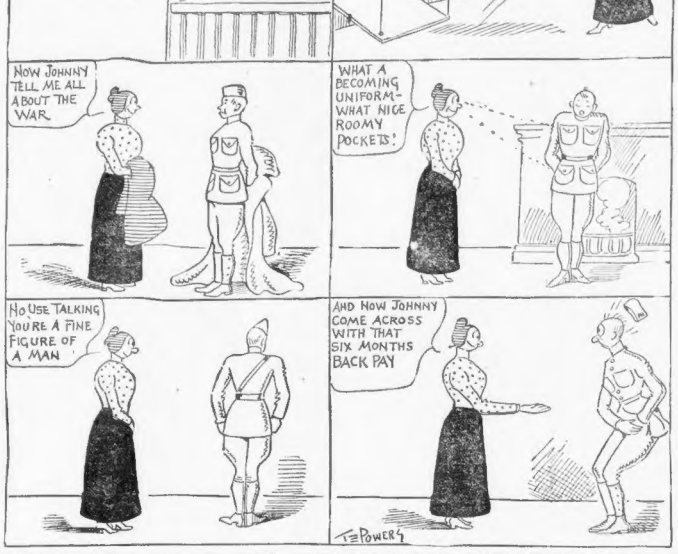
It will be said, "The government will keep the men in camp for months, letting them out slowly and thus the sudden oversupply of labor will be avoided."

Could anything more stupid, more un-American, more unjust and harmful be imagined?

If you are going to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars keeping soldiers locked up in camp, or keeping them abroad, if you are going to pay them not only their wages, while you keep them locked up idle and useless, but also pay for their keep, their housing, why not in the name of Heaven set them free, let them go home to their families, and try to place themselves. Continue to pay them their wages, but save the board and lodging that you give them when they are locked up idle in camp.

When Hubby Comes Marching Home Again

By T. E. Powers



HERE HE COMES!
JOHNNY DEAR.
KITTIE DARLING
NOW JOHNNY TELL ME ALL ABOUT THE WAR
WHAT A BECOMING UNIFORM— WHAT NICE ROOMY POCKETS!
NO USE TALKING YOU'RE A FINE FIGURE OF A MAN
AND NOW JOHNNY COME ACROSS WITH THAT SIX MONTHS BACK PAY
T. E. POWERS

This is a very simple outline of a big and most important question.

Just treatment for the soldier and sailor interests no man more than the man who is well to do and prosperous, especially THE VERY RICH MAN. For what the prosperous man wants is peace in the country, good feeling, cheerfulness, no bitterness among the millions of men that were taken to serve their country.

It is of interest to everybody, to the nation itself, from the biggest men in it down to the young man dismissed from the army or navy, to see that justice is done.

Petitions will be presented to Congress urging the payment of six months' pay to the soldiers. Sign those petitions which will be put before you.

And, in addition, write your own letter to the two Senators from your State, and to the Congressman from your District, and get your friends to write.

Changing it in your own way, word your letter about as follows:

To Congressman or Senator:

The national legislature, of which you are an honored member, voted to take young men away from their homes, from their work, asking them to sacrifice of their immediate future, and if necessary of their lives.

That was necessary legislation. The nation approved it and thanks you for it.

I ask you to use your influence now and see to it that these young men returning from war are justly treated. Give them the same consideration that is given to the bigger man who is dealing with the government officially, while the little man was simply offering his life.

I urge you to vote for a bill that will guarantee to every soldier at least six months' full pay after he leaves the army—little enough and far too little to do for men to whom the country owes so much.

Yours respectfully,

Name.....

Address.....

Write that out and sign your name, if you haven't time to write a better letter.

And especially talk to your friends and get them to write to congressmen.

It would be a peculiar thing if the United States that had millions, hundreds and thousands of millions for everything, from the biggest profiteer down to the needs of our friends the nations in Europe, had not a dollar for the soldiers and sailors that won the war for the nation.

GIVE THE SOLDIER AND SAILOR SIX MONTHS' PAY.

THE MEDICINE WILL DO YOU GOOD

You have a lot of ambition, and you may think you are doing as much and as good work, and putting forth as much effort as a man ought to, but changes and improvements you have made at specified times have convinced you that you are not enough wideawake all the time.

You need a hard jolt once in a while to make you carry on in a more aggressive manner.

It is a good thing for you to have your employer pick flaws in you once in a while in order that you may improve.

Take your medicine, no matter how bitter, and if you are made of the right stuff it will do you good.

There never was a man who did not need an awakening to keep at the top notch of his ability.

You are no different from the rest of humanity.

It does not set well for a while, of course, but censure or the loss of a good sale, is a powerful fortification against mistakes.

"AND I stood there on the street, and great tears blinded my eyes, so that when the President passed I could see him but indistinctly.

And when he had gone and I still stood there and listened to the wave of human voices that went with him I felt a wonderful pride in that I was a citizen of the United States and that this man whom Paris honored more than it had honored any other man was my President and my brother American."

JUST A few lines.
IN A letter from France
AND WHEN I read it.
I KNEW what it was.
THAT I had felt.
WHEN THE cable said.
THAT OUT in the rain.
AND THROUGH the night.
IN SMALL French towns.
A PEOPLE had stood.
AS A train sped through.
WITH ITS windows dark.
AND HAD raised their hats.
AND SOME had cheered.
AND THE train was gone.
AND I knew what it was.
THAT I had felt.
WHEN THE news came back.
OF THE mighty crowds.
THAT HAD waited long.
ON THE Paris streets.
FOR JUST one man.
AND A plain man.
OF ANOTHER tongue.
AND HE wasn't a king.
AND HE wasn't a knight.
AND HAD never been.
AND WOULD never be.
AND I knew what it was.
THAT I had felt.
WHEN THE cables told.
THAT IN London town.
A KING had come.
LIKE A fairy king.
COME OUT of a book.
AND HAD led him away.
THROUGH A multitude.
THAT HAD gathered there.
NOT TO see the king.
BUT HAD come instead.
TO ACCLAIM this man.
WHO WASN'T a king.
AND I knew what it was.
THAT I had felt.
WHEN THE word came back.
THAT THE streets of Rome.
HAD ECHOED the cheers.
OF ITALY'S sons.
AS THIS same man.
AND ITALY'S king.
PASSED ON their way.
AND THE cheers they heard.
WERE NOT for him.
BUT WERE for the man.
WHO WAS not a king.
AND I know what it is.
THAT COMES to me now.
AS I write these lines.
IT'S A depth of pride.
IN THAT this man.
WHO IS not a king.
IS THE spirit of me.
AND THE spirit of you.
GONE OVER there.

I THANK you.

WILL EARTH BECOME TOO SMALL FOR MANKIND?

By Garrett P. Serviss

I HAVE just been looking over some statistics of the present population of the globe and its rate of increase, which lead to a very interesting line of thought, and not one without its elements of uneasiness for a "forward-looking" person.

The world is not full yet, but it is much nearer that condition than is generally supposed. According to the best estimates its present total population is in excess of 1,600,000,000, and the rate of increase is such that, if continued, it must double the number of people living every 140 years. That means 3,200,000,000 human beings by the year 2058 and 6,400,000,000 by 2198.

Can the globe comfortably support the number of inhabitants indicated by the larger of these estimates? There is reason for doubt on that subject. This becomes evident when we set the number of acres of land that the earth contains over against the number of people. Most of the globe is covered by water.

Few Acres Apiece

The dry land is probably not much over 52,000,000 square miles in total extent. There are 640 acres in a square mile, so that the total number of acres of land comes out to 33,280,000,000. Divide that among 6,400,000,000 persons, and they will have only 5 1-5 acres apiece.

Now, if all the land were composed of the richest garden soil, and if there were means of keeping it continually at the highest degree of fertility and productiveness, perhaps it would be possible to feed the 6,400,000,000 mouths, and even to have a little to spare for an increasing generation.

But, when we consider that a large part of the dry land of the earth is mountainous and rocky, that another large part is dry and desert, while much which is cultivable possesses but a low degree of fertility, and when we further consider that already mankind is finding some difficulty in renewing and maintaining the productivity of the soil because of the exhaustion of the mineral elements that are indispensable to plant growth, we must admit to ourselves that the outlook for the 6,400,000,000 possible human beings of the year 2198 does not seem encouraging.

The fact is the thin film of soil covering the rocky crust of the globe, which is our only ultimate resource for the supply of food, has been pretty thoroughly spaded, ploughed and raked over already, and must be used to employ some such aid as that of an army of volcanoes and earthquakes to shatter more of the solid crust and bring up its fertilizing elements, into touch with the atmosphere, there does not seem much chance of a successful preparing of the ground for a quadrupling, or even a doubling, of our present numbers.

None Too Much Now

Truly, it is a tribute to the industry and intelligence of man that he is able to get as good a living as he does for his existing numbers out of the land of this planet. Even now, with a population of 1,600,000,000, there are only about twenty acres to a person, and of those twenty acres how many are really productive? As men get away from the land and congest their numbers in cities and industrial centres, they forget not only their obligations to, but their absolute dependence upon, the soil.

There was a good, sharp lesson during the war, and we are not yet out of the dilemma into which we were thrown by the sudden necessity of feeding the world when half the world had to stop turning over the soil to make food grow. No more convincing proof than that experience could be given of the fact that, at this very moment, the earth could not begin to keep its inhabitants, or a hundredth part of them, alive if it were left to its own rate of production.

A SLAVE OF HINDENBURG & CO. of course you're reading the story of the young Countess de Clam-Pascal, "My Three Years of German Slavery." Her chateau in France was occupied by Hindenburg and others in high command, and her story of the unsuspected savagery behind the German lines in devastated France stands unparalleled in history. A Big Fire in Europe. Keep It Away from Here. Autocracy's Eggs Scrambled. German Civil War.

By Arthur Brisbane.

(Copyright, 1919)

The latest is that Lenine is arrested, by order of Trotzky and the latter is sole dictator in Russia.

It is the usual story of a revolution, which runs like a fever. It starts, has its high point, dies down. It is the high point of the fever in Russia now, and the usual thing is happening. You read it in Carlyle's history of the Revolution in France.

Danton and Robespierre worked together. On a day, fatal for him, Danton protested to Robespierre against executions that confounded the innocent and the guilty.

"And who told you," Robespierre replied, with a poisonous look, "that one innocent person had perished?"

That settled Danton's fate. Robespierre soon had him arrested and soon after beheaded. And not much later Robespierre was guillotined in his turn. Danton knew his danger. He said, "As long as they talk of Robespierre and Danton, very well; beware when they talk about Danton and Robespierre."

Later we shall know what kind of talk it was that made Trotzky lock up Lenine. Lenine, as he retires from the scene, may say of Trotzky what Danton said of Robespierre, quoting Carlyle again:

"I leave the whole business in a frightful welter; not one of them understands anything of government. Robespierre will follow me; I drag down Robespierre. Oh, it were better to be a poor fisherman than to meddle with the government of men."

It is difficult for those in America, not fully understanding Russian conditions, to form any accurate judgment concerning the revolutionary movement there.

Lenine is not, as has been falsely asserted, a Jew who changed his name from Braunstein. He is a Slav, a fanatic, representing the extreme of radicalism. And Lenine is his name. He would call himself a Marxian socialist. He wrote two fat volumes on Karl Marxism. But it is Russian Marxism attempting to adapt the theories of Carl Marx written in the highly developed German industrial nation to Russia, which is still in a state of feudalism, about where France was in the time of Louis XV. There is no capitalism, except in Petrograd and some Polish cities.

As to what has really happened we know little.

The present condition is not known, and the future cannot be guessed. The only certainty is that the eggs of autocracy have been thoroughly scrambled and will never be unscrambled—not those same eggs.

A new egg of autocracy may be laid, a new czar hatched out, rising to power as Napoleon rose from the ashes of the French Revolution. But the Romanoffs, and the "Little Father" business are dead.

Germany, also, has her civil war, with fighting and killing in the streets of Berlin. The Kaiser did not realize how much inflammable stuff there was around, when he struck that match in 1914.

The hope for peace and some form of stable government in Germany seems to rest with Ebert and Haase, the former a workingman, said to make harness before he started making a republic, the latter a small German bandleader.

Their opponent, Liebknecht, representing those that demand the impossible, is the exact antithesis of his father. If he wins and his "Spartacus party" gets power, you may pity Germany, what there is left of her.

Even from England come murmurs of discontent. The crews of mine sweepers decline to risk their lives, now that war is over. England, always wise in compromise, will release from the service all except those that volunteered. No man will be compelled to remain in it. You read in Associated Press dispatches, "further demonstrations by the soldiers took place today in London and other centres."

It would be enlightening to know what the demonstrations are, and what the complaints.

President Wilson will soon begin his conversations with Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Orlando. A complicated situation faces them, complicated in ten thousand different ways. The wise thing would seem to be for the United States to listen politely, acquiesce in such plans as do not really concern us, and come home as rapidly as possible, to build a big navy here, and take a fair, well contented army of citizens, and prepare to protect this country in case of need, and prevent the reckless scrambling of eggs on this continent.

There is a big fire racing in Europe. We should help them to try to put it out. We did try to help them, sending over two million boys and many billions of dollars. We should think now about keeping the fire from spreading here.
